LORENZO

The name of Lorenzo may be new to you. But to discriminating European smokers, Lorenzo is recognized as one of the very best of all the fine Italian pipe makers. And this has been true since the House of Lorenzo was established in 1835.

The Lorenzo "atelier"—it is more of a studio than a factory—is located in the smiling countryside of the Lombardy Plain just north of Milan. This is pipe making country, and Lorenzo has recruited the most skillful and dedicated of the many artisans who live in this region. Of such rare people as these, it has been said that in a country where art is a way of life, that Italians tend to consider the artistic merits of objects almost instinctively. Centuries of tradition instill a high set of standards for good design and workmanship.

In these days of mass production and cursory inspections, Lorenzo virtually lives in his factory to oversee every operation. He personally buys all of the top quality materials which go into his products; and he selects and trains all of his personnel, above all for the Final Inspection Department where he probably has the tightest quality control of any factory in the industry. This insures a high degree of uniformity which inspires consumer confidence.

Lorenzo pipes are made from the best of Mediterranean briar, and are renowned for their beauty of grain and remarkably good smoking qualities. All Lorenzo mouthpieces are personally designed and precision fitted. Lorenzo pipes are made for knowledgeable smokers who look for such refinements as double tenons at the push and who avoid metal systems like the plague. Lorenzo pipes feature large smoke holes and are made with flat bottoms where possible.

A look at the pipe masterpieces illustrated in this catalog confirms that Lorenzo is in a class by himself. The series herein shown are designed especially to please American tastes. Some general ideas were suggested by Comoy's, but the execution is pure Lorenzo.
